This evening the series of services will be launched with the anniversary banquet in their Parish Hall. This banquet is open to all members and friends of the church. It will be a purely social affair, and no appeals will be made for either pledges or gifts to the Loyalty Fund. The diversified interests of the church will be presented by representative leaders. An attractive musical program has been provided. Among the important features will be solos by Miss Ernestine B. Bacon, lyric soprano, and Miss Vir-

Reynolds Hurls 2d Shutout in Series

Narberth Pitcher Blanks Paoli
3-0 in Last Sunday's Game.

STRUCK OUT SEVEN MEN

By DAVE CASEY

Narberth forged into the lead for the Main Line League championship last Sunday at Paoli when Bill Reynolds, veteran right hander, pitched another scintillating shut-out victory over Charlie Madden's team. The score was the same as last Sunday's game, 3-0 and Gene Davis' boys are now in a most advantageous position in the title fight, as a victory this Saturday on their home field will enable them to capture their fourth consecutive Main Line crown.

The largest crowd of the season thronged Swampoodle Park to witness the contest and for the second straight week saw Reynolds rise to the occasion and hold the Paoli sluggers helpless throughout the nine innings. The Narberth hurler held the Madden boys to four scattered hits, fanned seven men and demonstrated his superiority in such a convincing fashion that no Paoli player got as far as third base during the course of the contest. In addition to his superlative pitching feats, the redoubtable Reynolds was

Long Time Resident of Narberth, "Acer Platanoides," Passed Away This Week

This is the obituary of Acer Platanoides born in the 1890's, died in 1931.

Back in 1895, when a group of far-seeing citizens of Narberth gathered together to form a Borough, a very young Norway maple tree was beginning its career on the concourse north of the Narberth station. It stood on the south side of a pleasant dirt road known as Haverford Avenue, and with rows of older cousins, it kept the tiny business section shaded.

As time passed the horses which browsed on the foliage near it gave way to autos; the slowly-moving hacks at the station were replaced by Fords almost as slow, and later by more dignified taxis. Private cars began to demand space about the growing tree.

Soon macadam and concrete took the place of dirt; houses became stores; Narberth grew up. One by one the big elms, oaks and maples which had made Haverford Avenue so pleasant succumbed to building operations and starvation and were consigned to the fireplace. The big silver maple at the corner of Essex and Haverford disappeared, followed a few years ago by the pin oak on the Harry Wall property. The tree on the concourse was deserted.

With the other trees gone, civilization turned its enmity on the surviving tree. A large part of the roots gave way to a concrete retaining wall; the surrounding plot of ground was reduced, and then reduced again. The surviving roots, covered with macadam, could no longer carry on.

And so commuters and shoppers have watched the tree die. This week a group of workmen lopped off the branches and sawed through the stump. An autopsy showed rings indicating an age of more than 40 years—not old as trees go, but embracing the whole period of Narberth's growth.

But lest this be too sad a tale, word comes from the railroad that an evergreen will replace the departed—an evergreen large enough to serve as a community Christmas tree. If it lives as long as its predecessor, who knows but what it may see a new station at Narberth before it, too, becomes firewood?

Welfare Expert Tells of Relief Problems

Situation More Acute This Winter, Says K. L. M. Pray at Rotary.

ORGANIZATION NEEDED

Using as his text "What's Ahead," Kenneth L. M. Pray, head of the Pennsylvania School for Social and Health Work, addressed the Bala-Cynwyd-Narberth Rotary Club Tuesday. A resident of Narberth Mr. Pray is president of the Borough School Board.

Relief problems for the coming winter were emphasized by figures presented by the speaker. According to conservative figures prepared by the Philadelphia Chamber of Commerce there are 246,000 people in the city out of work and another 200,000 on part time. The lowest possible computation of the resultant wage loss is $3,000,000 per week, and the amount necessary to feed such a number of unfortunates is at least $75,000,000 per year.

In contrast to these figures, Mr. Pray showed that last year the money contributed, including the three millions of city borrowing, totalled only $10,000,000.

"The difficulty is increasing each year," the speaker said, "This is the third winter of bad business. The

Guild Luncheon to Be Held Monday at 1 P. M.

Plans have been completed for the bridge-luncheon to be held in the library of St. Margaret's School on Monday at 1 o'clock. The officers of St. Margaret's Guild will be the hostesses. Those wishing to make reservations for this luncheon should call Mrs. J. M. Townsend today.

The regular monthly meeting of the Guild will be held on Tuesday evening at 8:30 in the library of the school. Election of officers for the years 1931-32 will be held.

Officers Elected by American Legion Post

Commander to Be Named by Executive Committee
Shortly.

REPORT ON CONVENTION

At the first regular meeting of the year of the Harold D. Speakman Post, American Legion, of Narberth officers were elected for the coming year. An exception was the office of Post Commander. A nominating committee, headed by Past Commander Arthur L. Cooke, brought in a slate of nominees for all offices except that of commander.

After the routine and special business of the meeting had been attended to the report of the nominating committee was presented, and, at the suggestion of Commander Frank L. Schrepfer, election of the commander was deferred until after other offices were filled. This was done and the names submitted by the committee were unanimously accepted by the post. Those elected were as follows: Senior vice commander, Charles Greyer; junior vice commander, A. Perry Redifer; adjutant, Clifford Goodwin; finance officer, John A. Mower;

Johnson Brilliant in Lower Merion Defeat

Dropkick After Touchdown
Gives Episcopal Victory in Opener.

WEST CATHOLIC SAT.

Lower Merion High School lost the opening game of the football season for the first time in years and years last Friday when they were out-scored by Episcopal Academy by the meagre difference of a point after touchdown, 7-6.

Carl Johnson, clever negro ball-toter, won the admiration of the crowd by his smart work in the backfield and it was he who electrified the assembled multitudes by carrying the ball over the goal line for the first Maroon touchdown of the 1931 season, early in the first quarter. Herb Thomas' attempt for the extra point went short and Lower Merion's chances did not seem any the worse for it at that time. But Episcopal, using their heads for things other than places for shiny headgear, soon put the quietus on the throng by hurling a pass for a six-pointer and following this by a neatly placed dropkick for the extra point. Jack Mata was the lad who scored the touchdown and Tiernan the one who turned the tie into a glorious victory for the Inter-Academic team by his perfect dropkick.

The game was featured by the punting of the Episcopal backs, and the work of Johnson and Ryan for the Maroon. The local boys failed to take advantage of their opportunities, gaining readily and often in their own territory, but failing to advance dangerously in the enemy ground.

The game this week is with West Catholic, and is to be played on Penny-packer Field Saturday afternoon at 2:30. Coach Adam is getting his charges in readiness for the game, and with Newborg and Henry his two guards on the sidelines with bruises, he is using a couple of subs in their places. The team will probably line up exactly the same as it did in the opening setto, as Coach Adam has expressed his confidence in the team as he picked it. The boys seem in a fighting mood, and realizing what they are up against, their work has been snappy and aggressive.

Gettysburg Real Test for Villanova Team

Gettysburg College will bring to Villanova this Saturday a team equal to the one which handed the Wildcats a 3 to 0 drubbing last season, according to Eddie Hunsinger, one of Harry Stuhldreher's two assistants who scouted the Bullets since the Blue and White has been playing Villanova. Gettysburg has always boasted a strong aggregation and has the traditional reputation of being able to turn the tables on stronger and bigger teams consistently.

'Time Out'

By TOMMY MACKLIN

We sat through two football games the past week-end which caused us to wonder what has become of the good old-fashioned quarterback. In each of these two games the weaker team walked off the field the victor just because the signal callers failed to give the right number the right time. This cannot be blamed upon the boys themselves, but is more or less a tendency on the part of coaches the past few years to pay less attention to this department of play.

On Friday Lower Merion lost a game to Episcopal Academy, a smart, but certainly a weaker team than the one that represented the Flower of the Main Line. We trace that defeat to greenness, and particularly to the lack of experience in diagnosing the proper plays at times during the contest. Herb Thomas, calling signals for the varsity for the first time, cannot be held accountable for this, but his work must improve if the team is to make much headway. Over at Haverford High School on the following afternoon we saw the most miserable exhibition of quarterbacking we have seen in a long time. There's a school with unlimited power and they permitted a so-and-so team from Radnor to utterly rout them in a 13-to-2 setback. Brunhouse is an excellent football player but his choice of plays were foreign to good football, and thereby went the ball game.

Haverford may just as well face the facts and straighten things out now as later on. If they are to win ball games they must not depend on Max Forrest to do all the ball toting. He is not by any means the threat he is supposed to be. If Brunhouse will use himself in the punting and ball carrying capacities more, the team will go places. Maybe I'm wrong.

Had a pleasant conversation with Jack Mata, smart little halfback for the Episcopal team, after the game last week. Jack was unstinted in his praise of the Lower Merion line. "It is the best team I have faced in all my life," said the gritty young sportsman. "Believe me it certainly is well coached. Our only chance to score came when we noticed the two halfbacks spread a little too far and got away with that forward pass for a touchdown. If Lower Merion had passed a little more and kicked better we would not have had a chance."

Mata is a brainy player, and though weighing only 125 pounds, he is easily the spark in that backfield. His calling for that forward pass play at that particular time was evidence of what heads-up work will do for a team that hasn't the brawn.

The Junior High School starts the football season off for the Orange and Black followers with Ridley Park this week. Coach Richard Mattis will probably have another strong team this year.

Tomorrow Lower Merion tackles West Catholic in what should be a difficult pigskin encounter. The game will show definitely whether we are to expect much from the Maroon this season or not. This writer does expect a great deal. First reason at hand for the assertion is that we really and earnestly believe that Adam is the outstanding high school coach in or around Philadelphia along football lines. We do not consider Prevost, of Radnor, nor any of the other nice fellows around much more than comparable with him. They all have difficult jobs and we admire their work, but we believe that Adam will out-strip them all before the season is over.

Adam's only weakness, if you can call it a weakness, is the lack of brilliance to his team's performances. They are always steady and strong, and a credit to his work, but they lack that all-around brilliance that would make of him an outstanding coach of parts.

This column stands for a winning spirit in athletics. We want to impress on all the school boys who read it that the only way to be a good athlete is to play a team game all the time. If criticism comes, use it for a stepping stone to better moments. If praise comes accept it modestly remembering that your success is an opportunity to serve.

It's a short step from a hero's pinnacle to the land of the "goat." They, too, jump from crag to crag.

Samuel Gilpin, of Merion, Winner of Five Tennis Championships During 1931 Season

Five tennis championships in one season, not to mention the scalps of many prominent players, is the record during the 1931 campaign of Samuel B. Gilpin, of 115 Kenilworth Road, Merion, second ranking player of the Middle States area.

By defeating J. Gilbert Hall, of East Orange, in the finals of the Pennsylvania Clay Court Championships at Allentown recently, Gilpin not only acquired his fifth singles crown of the season but also gained revenge for a previous defeat at the hands of Hall in the National Championships.

Earlier in the season Gilpin won the Eastern States title at Springfield, the Delaware State championship at Wilmington, the Pennsylvania and Middle States championship at the Merion Cricket Club and the West Jersey championship at Moorestown.

In addition to the singles title in the Pennsylvania and Middle States tournament at Merion, which he has won for the fourth year, Gilpin also shared in the doubles and mixed doubles titles, having R. Norris Williams and Virginia Hilliard as his partners.

The Eastern States crown has fallen to Gilpin for four years and the Delaware State championship for three years.

These tournaments were not the only ones in which he distinguished himself. In the New England championships he defeated Marcel Rainville, Canadian Davis Cup star, and was runner-up to Eddie Jacobs. In the Nassau Invitation tournament Julius Seligson, former intercollegiate champion, fell a victim to Gilpin's prowess, while at Sea Bright he eliminated Jan Kozeluh, Czechoslovakian Davis Cup ace, and a brother of Karl Kozeluh, European professional champion. In the Nationals at Forest Hills, Gilpin took the measure of Jack Tidball, a sensational Californian.

A member of the Philadelphia Church Cup team for several years, Gilpin was its captain this season and in the match with the New York team, extended John Doeg, former national champion, to three sets.

Although he likes to play better on grass courts, he finds his game is more effective on clay. Three of his championships this year were won on clay courts, at Allentown, Springfield and Wilmington.

Gilpin has been playing tennis for approximately ten years, during the last seven of which he has engaged in tournament competition. He is a member of the Merion Cricket Club and the Cynwyd Club.

Reynolds Pitches Second Shutout in Title Series

the offensive star of the game, scoring two of the Narberth runs himself and driving in the third with a double to right field in the eighth inning.

Jimmy Noblitt, ace of the Paoli staff, also pitched a splendid game and had been given the excellent support accorded Reynolds the struggle might have gone into extra innings as Paoli errors figured in all the Narberth scoring.

All of the borough players put up a splendid fielding game with Bob Jones, Herb Baker and Harry Francis excelling in the alert and capable manner in which they thrilled the spectators and turned Paoli's drives into put outs. For the home team Barney Umbach was the outstanding star. This player, beyond a doubt one of the greatest outfielders ever seen in the Main Line League, covered the difficult left field sector in scintillating fashion, making five great catches and robbing at least two Narberth players of seemingly sure hits.

After four scoreless innings Narberth pushed their first run across in the fifth when Reynolds walked, Francis beat out a bunt, and MacGregor was safe on Trost's wild throw, which filled the bases. Slaughter then hoisted a long fly to Davis and Reynolds' score was the first tally. Reynolds started another run-making inning in the seventh with a single, went to third on Herb Baker's two-base blow and scored his second run when Potter dropped Noblitt's throw on Slaughter's tap to the pitcher. The Davismen ended their scoring activities with another run in the eighth inning. Jones, who scored it, oddly enough began the inning by striking out, but was safe on first when Eachus dropped the third strike and then threw wide to first. This was a tough break for Noblitt as King sacrificed Jones to second and the well-known Paoli menace, Bill Reynolds, then slammed out his second hit, a double, which scored the Narberth third sacker.

After Shank, pinch-hitting for Trost, fanned in the ninth, the home team staged an abortive rally that was killed by the greatest fielding play of the series. Verna walked and Umbach smote a sharp single to right, and then a fast relay, perfectly handled, Martin to MacGregor to Jones, trapped Verna at third base and Paoli's hopes sank. Reynolds then ended the game by calmly fanning Girard.

The Spectator

The ordinary things you do or the ordinary things you say may quickly take an unexpected twist, with results that occasionally prove amusing or amazing, and particularly so in the summer time, when the world and his wife are disposed to take it rather easy in all outdoor.

And it was this summer that our very nice young lady of Narberth, well-known and well-liked amongst us, betook herself to Baltimore for a short visit and whilst there learned that an old school friend had been recently delivered of child and was in the midst of her stay at one of the local maternity hospitals. It was entirely reasonable, of course, that our borough maiden should wish to see and felicitate her erstwhile companion, but not a great deal of time was available, as she was homeward-bound with bag and coat, and so the taxi-driver was asked to move along to the aforesaid maternity hospital as lively as he could.

Now, if you know Baltimore, you will recall what a polite town it is and how its people are above the average in the ways of gracious procedure. The taxi man soon made it plain that he was out to do as he was asked, to step double-quickly, as red lights were passed in quick succession and a pace observed that was altogether extraordinary. Bewildered, our friend started to tap vigorously on the pane, which only served to accelerate the speed, and at one point the hustling caravan was intercepted by a policeman, with whom there was some quick whispering, which impelled the officer to clamber on the running-board and the gait became more break-neck than before.

Meanwhile, the frantic passenger started to yell her gentle head off in an endeavor to get things right, but all she got out of it was an assurance from the officer that they were doing the best they could and for her to please just have a little patience. About then a motor cop was hailed and he is asked to lead the way, and, from what we hear, he did it exceedingly well, diverting traffic of all kinds whatsoever and screeching the procession into a perfectly clear road. On they went, pell-mell as would become a blessed advent into the world, swinging into the hospital driveway with superb skill, only to find the harassed one in a dead faint on the taxi floor, from which she was despatched without delay to the delivery room! Let her tell the rest of it.

Driving over to New York in August with Allie Miller, one of the stellar lights in the galaxy of old-time footballers who have established their habitats in Narberth, we left the main road at Newark to make a business call at Clifton, and that prompted Allie to remark that we were playing right to him, as he intended to sleep at Glen Ridge that night, at the home of his brother-in-law, and would we please stop there as we passed so that he could drop his bag and not have to carry it around with him all day in New York. At the appointed place we took the turn into a beautiful suburban avenue, bespread with lovely trees, a delightful environment of summer peace and quietude. A few hundred yards from the corner was a small bank building, well cloistered with flowers and foliage, and on the second floor of the bank Al's relative held forth as a dentist.

"Drive right in front of the bank," says he, "and I won't be a minute in getting rid of the bag and we'll be off again."

We stop and Al jumps out, leaving the door open, and up the stairs he scoots. He is hardly out of sight when a smart-looking young officer is at our side and is asking how things are in Pennsylvania, an inquiry which we promptly deduced was occasioned by our tags.

"Things are fair enough," says we, "and how are they with you?"

"All right," says he, "and would you mind letting me see your cards?"

An Enemy Is Recognized

From the fourth until the eleventh of October, the Main Line will join the rest of the country in the observance of Fire Prevention week. The purpose, and it is a worthy one, is to focus our attention upon the national scourge which fire represents.

Perhaps this year finds fire prevention a more important topic than in normal times. When prosperity is with us, we are apt to overlook waste. When something is burned we build anew and things go on much as usual. Savings may be swept away by Demon Fire, but the old job is secure, and the loss is made up.

A fire this year is more of a tragedy than usual. A home destroyed by flames, with the father jobless, means a family without shelter; a factory in flames means loss of employment for the workers, and the virtual impossibility of securing new jobs. Forest fires are eating into national resources which are sorely needed for economic recovery.

In its broad sense fire prevention has three phases: actual prevention of the start of a fire; quick action in checking a blaze, and insurance to cover the loss. The first is up to the individual; the second to the community; the third again to the individual. Thus the greatest part of the burden is one of preparedness by each of us.

Community handling of the fire situation resolves itself into a question of adequate fire plugs, sufficient modern apparatus, and well-trained firemen. It is more than fitting, therefore, that the attractive new home of the Penn Wynne Fire Company is to be dedicated on the eve of Fire Prevention Week.

The Main Line is well protected by its group of volunteer companies. They are well equipped and well trained, and the buildings are strategically located. Community support of these companies should be given willingly, and without the need of constant begging, for they save us many times their cost.

Departing Glory

The removal of the shade tree on the concourse of the Narberth station brings home to many Main Line residents the fact that verdure has nearly departed from the business districts of the various towns. The glare of concrete will soon reign undisturbed.

The sentimentally inclined will regret the passing of bucolic atmosphere, but it must be admitted that trees and modern business districts do not get along well together. The duty of shading the populace must fall on the roadside trees of the residential districts.

Thus it is that the Main Line communities which have the benefit of an active Shade Tree Commission have cause to congratulate themselves. Narberth pioneered the movement and was followed by Haverford Township. Now Lower Merion has a well-constructed ordinance with teeth in it, and a commission to enforce the law.

Intelligent handling of roadside tree problems, with the co-operation of the residents will not only preserve the present green aspect of our suburban section, but will tend to increase the attractiveness of sections needing attention. Even though the commercial sections are shorn of their crowning glory, there will still be trees about our homes where the robins and grackles can fight it out on summer evenings.

Needs Are Greater

The prediction was made by Kenneth L. M. Pray, social service worker speaking on the Main Line this week, that distress among the unemployed would be greater this winter than hitherto.

This calls for greater efforts at relief work, as he pointed out. This week the Main Line Emergency Committee began formulating its plans at a meeting in Ardmore. This organization and the Main Line Federation of Churches have been bearing the brunt of relief work in the section. The former in locating jobs and the latter in providing actual relief in terms of food, clothing and shelter.

Both of these are essential and citizens of the Main Line should do their utmost in co-operating with these agencies whose functioning is so vital to many of our residents.

Names in the News

Find Tropical Valley. Dr. and Mrs. J. Norman Henry and their family, of Gladwyne, returned last week from an exploring trip to British Columbia where they visited the fabled "Tropical Valley." Hot springs in the valley were so numerous that the ground itself was heated. Mrs. Henry and her two daughters are believed to be the first white women to set foot in those remote mountain fastnesses.

Talks on Japan. Dr. David H. Tennent, professor of biology at Bryn Mawr College, told of life in Japan and Java at the weekly meeting of the Main Line Kiwanis Club held on Tuesday at Whitehall, Haverford. Dr. Tennent has just returned from a trip around the world.

Predicts High Speed Line. Dr. Herbert J. Tily, of Cynwyd, predicted that a high speed line between Philadelphia and Camden would be in operation by 1933 in an address before a joint luncheon of the Camden County Chamber of Commerce and the Camden County Real Estate Board last week. Dr. Tily, president of Strawbridge and Clothier, is also a director of the Philadelphia Rapid Transit Company.

Greets New Students. Dr. William A. Pearson, of Narberth, Dean of the Hahnemann Medical College, welcomed a freshman class of 150 students to that institution on Monday. Dr. Pearson is president of the Philadelphia Rotary Club.

Depreciates Wet Talk. The anti-prohibition talk at the recent American Legion Convention in Detroit was characterized as "hullabaloo" by Dr. Harry M. Chalfant, of Narberth, editor of the Pennsylvania edition of "The American Issue," official organ of the Anti-Saloon League. Mr. Chalfant has recently published a volume, "These Agitators and Their Idea," tracing the development of the temperance idea in America through the lives of its foremost advocates.

Approves Referendum Demand. Robert K. Cassatt, of Rosemont, chairman of the Pennsylvania Association against the Prohibition Amendment, voiced his approval of the American Legion's demand for a referendum on the Eighteenth Amendment. "It is most encouraging to our anti-prohibition forces in Pennsylvania," he said.

Left $54,000. The will of Henry Becker, of Ardmore, who died September 12th, bequeathed the bulk of his estate of $54,000 to the Masonic Home at Elizabethtown. Several annuities of $1,000 each were left to various persons.

Weds Whitney Heir. Miss Gwladys Crosby Hopkins, Stafford debutante, became the bride of Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney, of New York, at a quiet ceremony at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Stevens Heckscher, on Tuesday at 1 o'clock. Whitney is the son of the late Harry Payne Whitney and is reputed to be one of the wealthiest men in America. The bride introduced an innovation by wearing a tinted gown instead of the conventional white.

Tie for Honors. Two Cynwyd youths, Coleman Tily, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry C. Tily, 2d, of Overhill Road, and Justice D. Upham, son of Mr. and Mrs. Myron L. Upham, of State Road, tied for the sweepstake prize at the first annual flower show held last week at Lower Merion Junior High School. Each will receive a gold school seal pin.

Granted Patents. Main Line inventors who have been granted patents during the past week include Hosford D. Kellogg, Jr., of Haverford, for a fountain pen, and Alan S. Fitzgerald, of Wynnewood, for an electrical regulator.

Wynnewood Girl Elopes. The elopement of Miss Alice Elizabeth Lane, of Wynnewood, and William Foxall MacElree, University of Pennsylvania junior, to Elkton on September 18th, was revealed this week. The bride, 20 years old, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold S. Lane, of Knox and Sussex Roads. She attended the Caskin School, Devon.

Do You Know the Hay Diet? Consult 'Health via Food'

Still it persists, the Orange-and-Milk Breakfast cult, for they refuse to call it a diet, those people who are now happily discussing their freedom from formerly persistent ills. Not restriction in food, nor limitation, but, what is the phrase? the "separation of incompatibles" is responsible for the marvelous effects gained by following the new menus.

If there is any one who is not acquainted with the underlying principles of this food system, the Library recommends a thorough mastication of "Health via Food," by Dr. William Howard Hay, of East Aurora, New York. Dr. Hay has been delivering a series of demonstration lectures for about a year in at the Penn Athletic Club, which partly accounts for the popularity of this diet (a slip of the type) among men.

The amazing results of conforming to the Hay precepts for a season provides many a subject of discussion when a change is needed from clothes or the depression. In fact the assertion has been made that the new diet has been an important factor in dispelling the gloom cast by the continuous ten per cent. cuts, and what it has done to clothes, let its adherents relate. Dr. Hay's book has been in steady demand ever since its purchase by the Library, which is in itself a recommendation. The book states in simple terms the fundamental principles on which the system is based, gives flexible rules for adapting one's established habits to the new regime, and provides complete menus for one typical month.

New Books

"These Agitators and their Idea", by Harry M. Chalfant, (Cokesbury Press, Nashville, Tenn., $2.00)

Although "These Agitators" is a book which traces the development of the temperance idea in America as exemplified in the lives of its foremost protagonists, it is also a volume which will afford enjoyment to all who are interested in biography.

Beginning with Dr. Benjamin Rush, the celebrated physician and Revolutionary soldier whose writing and speeches were a potent influence for the cause of sobriety in his day, the highlights in the lives of fifteen men and woman who devoted themselves to this cause are traced with emphasis on the human interest point of view.

It is interesting to note, in view of the present hue and cry for the modification of the Prohibition law to permit the sale of light wines and beer, that the early advocates of temperance in this country attacked the use of hard liquor only. Dr. Rush and Lyman Beecher, the great preacher, both confined their efforts in the interests of temperance to fighting the use of distilled spirits. Beecher himself, however, and his family practiced total abstinence from intoxicants in any form.

Lyman Beecher is credited with being the father of more brains than any other man in America. He was married three times and was the father of thirteen children, among them Henry Ward Beecher, who became the most famous American preacher of the nineteenth century, and Harriet Beecher Stowe, the author of "Uncle Tom's Cabin," one of the classics of American literature in that century and which is considered an important factor in the freedom of the negro race.

Neal Dow, whose career covered the nineteenth century from four years after it began to within two years of its knell, was a national figure who was responsible for the enactment of the prohibition law in the State of Maine. He served with distinction during the Civil War and made several trips to England both before and after the struggle in the interests of prohibition. He is considered the father of prohibition in this country in that he was largely responsible for turning conviction into law.

John B. Gough, an immigrant Englishman and for many years a pitiful drunkard, is one of the interesting characters of the book. He is described in the chapter heading as the "platform premier." Following his conversion from drunkenness, he became a fiery protagonist for the cause of temperance. Gough was a great success as a platform orator and was heard before his death by over nine thousand different audiences and in the neighborhood of four million people.

Among the women prominent in the list of agitators one encounters Frances E. Willard, a school teacher, who became interested in temperance work and lived to be one of the leaders in the Woman's Crusade against liquor; Mary H. Hunt, another teacher, who was responsible for the introduction of scientific temperance instruction in the schools of the country, and Mary Harris Armor, styled the "Joan of Arc" of the temperance movement in the South.

Other agitators who pass in review are John B. Finch, leader of the Good Templars, ardent advocates of prohibition; Sam P. Jones, the circuit-riding evangelist; John Granville Woolley, a brilliant lawyer who became candidate for President under the banner of the Prohibition party in 1900; Michael J. Fanning, high-pressure advocate of prohibition on lecture platforms across the country; Howard Hyde Russell, founder of the Anti-Saloon League; Purley Albert Baker, a superintendent of the League; Wayne Bidwell Wheeler, whose suggestions were adopted in large measure in the framing of the Volstead Act, and William E. (Pussy-foot) Johnson one of the most widely known workers for prohibition.

Except for a pardonable bias towards the blessings of prohibition, the volume is non-controversial in its conception. The sketches form an interesting and informative history of the agitators for temperance in America.

Harry Malcolm Chalfant, a resident of Narberth for the past eighteen years, came under the spell of the Temperance movement when, as a boy of fifteen, he heard John B. Finch deliver an address at his school. The conviction never left him that he was called to this field of work. Born in Washington County, Pa., he was graduated from Washington and Jefferson College. One of a family of six sons, he was brought up by his father, a community physician, on the doctrine of scientific temperance. As a youth he was attracted to journalism, writing for the paper published in his college town. He continued in this field for a time after his graduation, but thought the ministry would provide greater opportunity in temperance work. He became a Methodist minister and served for a number of years as a pastor. In 1909 he joined the Anti-Saloon League as editor of the Pennsylvania edition of "The American Issue," its official organ, which post he has held for the past twenty-two years. Mr. Chalfant is also the author of "Father Penn and John Barleycorn," and a play, "Paying the Fiddler." He has always exhibited a deep interest in the political affairs of the State where wet and dry issues are involved, and has debated often on the prohibition question.

In the Mailbag

To the Editor of "Our Town":

Being an active worker in behalf of the Johnson ticket at the recent Primary Election I feel called upon, reluctant as I am to rush into print, to make some answer to the letter of Mr. Walzer that appeared in the last issue of "Our Town."

Unlike Mr. Young, who polled a splendid vote in the county and whose letter appeared in an earlier issue of "Our Town," which stamped him as a worthy opponent and a good loser, Mr. Walzer seems to have made the election a strictly personal issue and his letter, to say the least, was in marked contrast with the very dignified one of Mr. Young's.

Quite aside from any one man's personal ambition and in spite of the cloak of virtue as exemplified in the so-called Political Freedom ticket which was used to cover the Just-Boyd combination, the fact remains the election was a clean-cut issue either for or against Pinchot. The election being a primary any registered citizen had a perfect right to vote as he pleased and if citizenship means anything at all it was unfair to place any man's personal ambition above a principle. Regardless of what has been printed elsewhere the mere handful of us who worked for the Johnson ticket had no expectation of winning the borough, whose politics for years has been against the Johnson organization. With only two weeks to work and no organization our effort was directed towards holding down the majority and thus helping to win the county vote. Of course we accomplished our objective and this talk of slipping away in the dark is nonsense. A good sport never rubs it in. To be perfectly frank those of us who worked for the Johnson ticket, meant just that, and supported the ticket from the top to the bottom. However, it was clearly understood and agreed upon that if anyone was prompted by either friendship or neighborhood opinion to vote for the two local candidates no effort was to be made to change their desires, but to press for the balance of the Johnson ticket. An analysis of the vote cast in the borough will prove that many people so voted. This statement is in no sense an apology to anyone but is made in fairness to those who worked and voted for the Johnson ticket and for the benefit of other fair-minded people in the community.

Strange as it may seem before election day was over and since then threats have been passed around of what was going to happen to those who dared vote against the Just-Boyd candidates, and this came from some of those who solicited votes in the name of political freedom.

Yours very truly,

HENRY A. SMITH.

A Page of Local Home and Garden Information

By ROBERT J. EDGAR

Autumn!

Busy days for gardeners.

It gets late early these days.

Tulips may be planted five to six inches deep.

Narcissi six to seven inches deep.

All the small bulbs two inches deep.

And these depths mean to the bottom of the hole, or the base of the bulb.

Among the nice things noticed on our garden visits was the marigold known as guinea gold, a wonderful color and fine form.

Masses of salvia azurea were most effective, the color is a soft blue or gray blue and the height is three feet. This Rocky Mountain blue sage is perennial while the patens and farinacea kinds are treated as annuals. The salvias do well in poor soil.

Celosia plumosa in the yellow color was effective with blue hardy asters. We will have this annual on the list for next spring.

Knowing the ultimate size of shrubs is important. Many fine shrubs are spoiled by planting too closely. Give them plenty of space in which to develop, filling in the spaces temporarily with perennials, bulbs or annuals. Chrysanthemums make good fillers among shrubs.

Time to space out pansy seedlings so that they may be set out conveniently next spring. The same goes for seedling perennials.

Ten good tough rock garden plants would include alyssum saxatile citrinum, double arabis, aubrietias, phlox subulata vivid, tunica saxifraga, veronica rupestris, dianthus caesius, campanula carpatica, saponaria ocymoides and plumbago larpenta. These may all be planted this fall. Pot grown plants are more satisfactory than field plants.

Some day we hope to see an all-American garden. Hemlocks, red cedars and hollies, red maples, striped maples, gray birch, cockspur thorn, bird cherry, redbud, white dogwood, sweet gum, sour gum, sweet magnolia, wild crab and yellow wood for trees, spice bush, shad bush, nine bark, red chokeberry, sumac, winterberry, sweet pepper, fringe tree, snowberry, arrow wood, maple leaved viburnum, white rod, nannyberry, elderberry, yellow-root, sweet spire and azaleas such as the pinkster, flame and swamp kinds for shrubs. To be continued in next week's column.

"No objection at all," says we, "but what's the idea?"

"What's the idea yourself," says he, "with your car stopped in front of a bank, your engine running and your door wide open, with not a soul in sight except myself, and I wasn't where you could see me."

And when Allie returned, as he did very quickly, we were glad he looked so respectable.

You can get the approximate date if you remember when the big show opened at Atlantic City. It was a day or two before that when two of the prettiest girls you ever did see implored us beseechingly from the middle of the road right at Cynwyd Station. Well, something like that is worth stopping for, and we opened the door to find out what was wanted. Would we please take them to Wanamaker's, as they had missed their train, and it was most important that they get into the city centre at a certain time. We weren't going that way, but we could drop them at the subway station at Broad and Lehigh Avenue and that they said, was fine.

As we have explained, the door was open and the pair of them clambered into the front seat. We pointed out they would be more comfortable in the back, but they said they preferred the front. Out comes their little cigarettes and in our paternal way we observed that they were a pair of right good-looking girls.

"We're glad you think so," they rejoin, "and we guess Mr. Carroll thinks so, too, else he wouldn't hire us."

"And who is Mr. Carroll?" we respectfully inquire.

"Surely you have heard of Earl Carroll, haven't you?" they both asked in chorus, and then we knew that we had

Local Delegate Tells of Legion Convention

Criticism of Alleged Misconduct
Unjustified, Says Frank Schrepfer.

LEGION SENTIMENT WET

The National Convention of the American Legion held in Detroit last week was an extremely interesting and colorful affair, according to Frank A. Schrepfer, Commander of the Narberth Post, who attended as one of the local delegates.

About 100,000 members were in attendance, he said, and every facility of the city was at their command. The utmost friendliness and courtesy on the part of the people and city officials was in evidence at all times.

"The parade," Mr. Schrepfer continued, "was a mammoth and breath-taking spectacle. With one hundred thousand men in line, thousands of flags and standards, and four hundred bands and bugle and drum corps participating, the parade swung for almost ten hours from Belle Isle, a beautiful city park of Detroit, located in the Detroit River, along the main streets of the city. Overhead, hundreds of planes droned as they circled, looped, rolled and performed various maneuvers. Perfect weather climaxed four days of feverish fun and activity."

Commenting on the criticism of the Legion because of alleged misconduct, Mr. Schrepfer asserted that of the one hundred thousand men who attended the convention, only fifteen hundred were there on official Legion business. "The rest came for a good time and they had it," he said.

The assertion that the vote on a national Prohibition Referendum was the work of a "mob of drunks," as one dry leader characterized it, he declared was an unmitigated and malicious lie. "There was no evidence whatsoever that official delegates were drunk on the floor of the Convention," Mr. Schrepfer stated. "In fact, the entire Convention yielded fewer drunken men than would be found in any typical city of one hundred thousand people, particularly at a carnival time. And that is what a National Legion Convention is, a gigantic carnival."

That the sentiment of the Legion is overwhelmingly "wet" is beyond any shadow of doubt, Commander Schrepfer said. He pointed out, however, that the actual referendum vote was an expression of condemnation of the Prohibition Amendment as a failure in effect and in fact.

"The demand for a referendum by states constitutes a piece of political maneuvering that is more effective than the vote itself," he said. "As it would take at least two years before a nation-wide state referendum vote could be taken, and as the national elections will take place within a year, the Legion vote embarrasses neither the Administration in its policy inaction in bringing the issue to the people, nor either of the major parties, as there will be no nation-wide result of the referendum to act as a compelling force."

"Correctly analysed, the action of the Convention, as well as the conduct of the attending Legionnaires, is merely a reflection of the sentiment of a cross section of the nation, which considers the law unsound, unwise and unenforceable. There has always been a smouldering resentment on the part of a very large majority of service men against the prohibition law. This resentment voices itself in disregard for the law and in a growing demand for its repeal or modification."

One of the interesting facts brought about by the Convention is that the action of the Convention is a force to compel the new national commander, an avowed personal and political dry, to bend every effort of the Legion's tremendous power to bring about a referendum, which is opposed and feared by the dries.

Besides Mr. Schrepfer, the following men represented the borough: Arthur

THE FIRESIDE

Mr. James Ford Donnelly, a graduate of Lower Merion High School, formerly of Ardmore, who recently moved to Evanston, Ill., left on Thursday to enter the Freshman Class at Harvard, where he is taking a pre-medical course.

Mrs. M. M. Livingston and her daughter, Miss Margaret Livingston, of Chestnut Avenue, who have been spending several weeks in Evanston and Chicago, Ill., where they have been the guests of Mrs. James F. Donnelly, formerly of Ardmore, and Mrs. C. P. Fowler, formerly of Narberth, returned on Thursday. Several parties were given for Mrs. Livingston and Miss Livingston during their stay. One by Mrs. J. O. Roberts, daughter of Mrs. C. P. Fowler, at which there were twelve former residents of Narberth. They were as follows: Mrs. Leroy Douglass and her daughters, Miss Carrie Louise Douglass and Miss Virginia Douglass, and Mrs. Douglass' mother, Mrs. R. E. Rainey; Mrs. C. P. Fowler, Mrs. H. P. Mathias, Mrs. James Donnelly and her daughter, Miss Anne Donnelly, and a number of additional guests. Mrs. Leroy Douglass also gave a luncheon and bridge in honor of Mrs. Livingston and Miss Livingston. There were eight guests. ### Community Bible Class to Resume Sessions

The Community Bible Class, which has been led for some years by Miss M. Charlotte Harrison, of the Extension Staff of the Philadelphia School of the Bible, will resume its sessions next Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock in the Narberth Presbyterian Church. Miss Harrison's studies in the Bible have been most helpful to those who have attended the class in past seasons, and a particularly enriching series of lessons may be looked for this fall as she takes up "Dispensational Truth," which was the general topic for study chosen by vote of the members of the class at the conclusion of the lessons last spring.

L. Cooke, John C. Nash, Walter P. Miesen and Samuel McQuiston. Allan Shubert, formerly a member of the Narberth Post, was a delegate from the Ninth District.

Junior Club Winter Season Opens With Supper Meeting

The first meeting of the Junior Community Club will be held on Thursday evening, October 8, at the Community Building, west wing, the new meeting place of the Women's Club. The meeting will be a supper-meeting, the menu provided by the members, each one bringing a "covered dish." It is hoped that there will be 100 per cent. attendance, with the possibility of new prospects for membership, for a full and eventful year has been planned and an enthusiastic meeting to start the year will be the best kind of omen for future success.

Mrs. Arthur Waters, wife of the Philadelphia dramatic critic, and herself a very active participant in affairs of the theatre, will be the speaker. Her subject will be the new season of the Professional Players organization, and she will tell of their plans and plays for the winter. The Juniors have been fortunate in hearing Mrs. Waters in other years, and always look forward to her very interesting and charming descriptions of stage personages and first-night anecdotes.

Alumnae Hold Party

The Alumnae of the Girls' High School of Philadelphia held a very successful card party at the home of their president, Mrs. Arthur C. Goldsmith, on Montgomery Avenue, Wynnewood, on Saturday afternoon. There were about a hundred people present. The card party was given for the relief fund of the school, whose purpose is to provide carfare, lunch money and other necessities for needy students.

Firemen, Mulieres Work Together on Carnival

A Committee of the Mulieres was present on Tuesday evening at the regular meeting of the Narberth Fire Company in Elm Hall, when plans were discussed for the forthcoming Carnival to be held there on October 23 and October 24. Two similar meetings are to be held on Tuesday evening, October 13, and Tuesday, October 20, to which all chairmen and other workers who are interested in the carnival are invited.

The carnival will open at 5 o'clock on Friday evening, October 23, with a cafeteria supper, which is in charge of Mrs. Edward Haws and Miss Flora Kurzenknebe and their aids. A cafeteria supper will also be served on Saturday evening, October 24, from 5 until 7. The carnival opens at 1 o'clock on that day. There will be a grocery table, a cake and candy table, cigars, cigarette and hot dog table; a toy table, fancy work and apron tables and many other tables filled with attractive articles for the interested buyer.

This big carnival is being given for the benefit of the Narberth Fire Company and is in charge of Mrs. Eberhardt Mueller, of Essex Avenue, president of the Mulieres. Anyone who is interested in helping or who would like to become a member of the Mulieres, please call Narberth 3883. The next meeting of the Mulieres will be held in Elm Hall on October 8, at 2 o'clock. Everybody is welcome.

BUSINESS BITS

In grand style will be the opening this Friday night, 8:00 to 9:30 P. M., of Narberth's new Quaker Stores. There will be special music by Freihofer's Band Wagon, attractive displays of merchandise and free samples. The stores, owned respectively by Howard F. Cotter and Joseph J. Whiteside, retain their individuality, but buy co-operatively through an association of hundreds of grocers in the Philadelphia district. Of these members, comparatively few are selected to be Quaker Stores, and their merchandise is uniformly high in quality and low in price, as a result of the co-operative buying arrangement.

Narberth has the distinction of being the only community in which two such stores are permitted to do business in one block. This exception would seem to speak well for a splendid spirit of co-operation existing between Mr. Cotter and Mr. Whiteside.

At W. H. Haws' hardware store on Haverford Avenue near Narberth Avenue, a painting demonstration will be given Saturday of next week. Small pieces of furniture and woodwork may be brought to the store by anyone, and painted free, to demonstrate Wetherill's 4-R Finishes. In the meantime, a small can of paint will be given each adult purchaser of any fifty-cent item in the store.

Miss Margaret Lambert, of 612

Shady Lane, announces the opening of a kindergarten and nursery school October 1. The hours, 9 until 12; the ages, 3 to 5.

Mrs. Ethel Ridge Caldwell of 418 S. 44th Street announces piano and vocal instruction in the pupil's home, in an ad this week.

Mrs. Roland K. (Jean) Hewitt, of 97 Windsor Avenue, announces a Spencer corsetiere service for women, at her new residence, 206 Woodbine Avenue.

National Fire Prevention Week, October 4-10, reminds us that because of the efficient volunteer fire company, Narberth's is the lowest fire insurance rate on the Main Line, and that fire insurance on homes, furniture, lost rent, automobiles, etc., is handled by several agents in Narberth.

One Floats.
One Sinks

—the secret of
"cone-cleaning"

By a remarkable new Cone-Cleaning process, sand and water are mixed in sufficient density to float pure coal. Literally scrubbed clean, the coal floats, while impurities sink.

The "D. & H." Lackawanna Anthracite is pure coal—it floats. All other non-premium-priced coal sinks, because of its impurities.

Every ton of Thompson's anthracite coal you buy is of the same uniform high quality. It sets new standards of heating comfort because it responds so quickly to control. Since it is all coal, it naturally gives you more heat value per ton.

Yet in spite of these outstanding advantages it costs no more than ordinary coal. Why experiment further? Specify this new-day fuel next time you order.

Legion B. and L. to Open 26th Series

New Shares of Stock Offered at Annual Meeting Next Tuesday

ASSETS ARE $347,378.68

Its twenty-sixth series of stock will be opened by the Narberth American Legion Building and Loan Association for subscription at the annual stockholders' meeting, 7 to 9 P. M., next Tuesday, at the office of the Narberth Coal Company. At that time also officers and directors will be elected.

Increased confidence in this community's building and loan associations will probably be reflected in the subscriptions for stock in the new series. Checks for the thirteenth double series, which has just matured, are now being mailed; and in November a single series will mature, with checks for $55,400 being sent holders of 277 shares.

Assets of the association, as listed in an advertisement elsewhere in this paper, total $347,378.68. Officers are Alexander C. Shand, Jr., president; Colonel I. A. Miller, vice president; Harry A. Simpson, secretary; Horace T. Smedley, treasurer, and Walter M. Burkhardt, solicitor.

Directors are: Edward Davis, Maurice B. DuMarais, Ralph S. Dunne, William H. Fowler, Harry A. Jacobs, J. L. McCrery, Carl B. Metzger, I. A. Miller, John A. Mowrer, Jr., Henry T. Nash, Jr., James W. Follin, A. C. Shand, Jr., Harry A. Simpson, Horace T. Smedley, Fletcher W. Stites and William H. Durbin.

Officers Elected by American Legion Post

sergeant at arms, Edward Ensinger; color bearers, W. H. Cook and R. Nicholson; executive committee, Dr. A. J. Denman, William H. Durbin, John C. Nash, W. P. Miesen, Henry A. Frye. The Rev. Robert Keighton was re-elected post chaplain.

After the election the commander called a recess to permit a caucus to secure proper nomination for commander. It then developed that it would be impossible to select a satisfactory candidate at the time and upon motion it was decided to declare no contest for the commandership and the election was deferred until a subsequent time. The commander announced that under the circumstances the election of a commander was the first business of the post and would take place at any time when called for from the floor. A later discussion developed the thought that the selection of a commander for the next year would be best left in the hands of a competent committee. It was accordingly voted to empower the executive committee to appoint a commander for the coming year. Commander Schrepfer then announced that the executive committee would be called in session within a week or ten days. Among the prominent legionnaires mentioned for the commandership were Burgess Henry A. Frye and John C. Nash.

Commander Schrepfer reported on the State convention which developed no items of special interest to the local group. Most important was the move to redistrict the legion units according to the new Congressional alignment made necessary by the census. This region would be affected by this ruling, as it would separate Bucks and Montgomery counties which, at the present time, constitute the Ninth District. Widespread opposition to the action of the convention is evident in the affected districts, and it is planned to bring pressure on the department executive committee to hold up action on this matter until the next State convention.

first year common labor was affected. Last winter the unemployment extended to skilled labor and white collar workers. This year even the professional class is affected. Relief will therefore cost more because of the higher standards of living involved."

Mr. Pray emphasized his belief that the only way to get results is through organization and co-operation. Aid rendered without accurate information and adequate investigation is often wasted. He quoted studies showing the various abuses which are sapping away the money needed for the relief of acute distress.

It was shown, he said, that soup kitchens found 75 per cent of their "customers" to be duplicates, going from one line to another. In schools supplying free breakfasts, of which 12,000 children partook last winter, a great number were cases of children already well fed at home, or of children whose parents were well able to give them good breakfasts, and merely shifted the responsibility to the schools. "In times like these," he concluded, "the professional pan handler reaps a harvest."

Anniversary Banquet Launches Series of Services

tive of Christians." Mr. MacAdams will direct the services, during which excellent music will be heard.

The following Sunday, October 11, Dr. H. C. Leonard, of the Board of Home Missions, will preach. Dr. Leonard has held important pastorates in the West and also been District Superintendent. The evening will be featured by a community men's meeting, under the auspices of the Men's Club of the church. It is hoped this will be a stimulating occasion. Addresses will be delivered by the Hon. Fletcher W. Stites and Dr. MacDaniel. There will be special music. All the men of the community are most cordially invited to attend this service.

The climax of the anniversary will occur on Sunday, October 18. The aim of the pastor is to have a 100 per cent. loyalty attendance of all members at the morning service, which will be held at 10:30. At this service the loyalty pledges to the Building Fund will be announced. Dr. MacDaniel will be the guest speaker and will endeavor to inspire the local membership to adopt and push a broad and progressive program of activities for the following year. All friends of the Methodist Church will be most cordially invited to this jubilee service.

The services will conclude with the Every-Member Communion service in the evening. Mr. MacAdams, the pastor, will direct the service. The spiritual responsibility of the church to the community will be impressed upon the members, who at this time will be asked to rededicate themselves to another year of loyal service in the work of the Kingdom of God.

It is the hope of the pastor and the pal Church that this anniversary will officials of Narberth Methodist Episcopal develop such a spirit of service on the part of the members that Narberth will be impressed with the broad spirit of helpfulness of this local institution. Everyone is invited to support these services, which are planned for all. A cordial welcome is assured to all citizens of the local community at any services which they may be able to attend.

Men's Club Sponsoring Play

The Men's Club of the Narberth Methodist Episcopal Church is preparing to present the play, "Corporal Eagen Is Coming," on November 19 and 20. The play will be produced by the Universal Production Company, which gave the "College Flapper" in the Borough last year for the benefit of the Boy Scouts.
